It is remarkable how persistently men or women will stick to a drug through thick and thin, even after they become convinced that the drug is slowly killing them.

This is illustrated thousands of times every day. A sample case is that of F. L. Wolford of Columbus, Ohio, who says that all his life, since a boy when he began drinking coffee, he has been anything but robust, or even in what might be termed good health. He has tried all sorts of irugs and tonics, and consulted many doctors. He quit tobacco, avoided all intoxicating drinks, stopped eating pastry, and took life easy as far as work was concerned, but the same old trouble

Mr. Gorman as an Educator. To the Editor of The Evening Start

In connection with your timely and pointed editorial of the 28th instant on the above subject it might be well to note the fact that during the consideration of Mr. Gorman's "illiterate" disfranchising bill in the Maryland legislature among the many amendments offered thereto by the republicans in their vain efforts to preserve some American freemen in that now dishonored state, was one that sought to exempt from disfranchisement "persons having all other constitutional requisite for qualified voters in this state because of their absence therefrom while employed in the civil, military or naval service of the United States, or while a student in any school or seminary of learning," but it was unanimously voted down by Mr. Gorman's political lieutenants when it was pointed out that without some such amendment the gallant and heroic Schley himself, for whom they profess so much solicitude, would be disfranchised, it availed nothing.
